Foreword

Dr. Robert Wimmer
Lead Project Manager - SHINE
Managing Director - Center
for Appropriate Technology
(GrAT)

Tourism is Bhutan's second highest revenue generator. However, tourism benefits are concentrated in western Bhutan, while most of eastern and southern areas are barely visited by international tourists, despite the vast potential to attract tourists - pristine landscapes, rich cultural heritage, historical narratives and diverse ethnic minorities. This imbalance is reflected in the Bhutan Tourism Monitor 2019 with the eastern and southern districts receiving only about five percent of the country's overall visitors.

The project "Sustainable Hospitality Industries Inclusive of Native Entrepreneur (SHINE)" funded under the SWITCH-Asia Programme mitigates this disparity by facilitating tourism gains among Bhutan's remote and economically latent places and communities. The project was initiated by Centre for Appropriate Technology (GrAT) and kicked off in May 2020 in partnership with Handicrafts Association of Bhutan (HAB), Bhutan Association of Women Entrepreneurs (BAOWE), and STENUM Asia in India. This four-year project targets seven districts - Trashigang, Trashiyangtse, Pemagatshel, Lhuntse, Mongar, Zhemgang and Dagana.

To contribute to sustainable and inclusive tourism development in Bhutan with an improved regional spread of the tourism activities and its value, SHINE adopts the two-way strategy: to vitalize tourism where the handicraft and agro- products are made, and conversely, to bring these products to where tourism is. The project engages native producers - individuals and groups in the tourism value chain, links their products and services to the tourism hubs, and uses Appropriate Technology (AT) to increase production quality and quantity.

SHINE's various interventions include product diversification, quality and quantity improvement of handicrafts and agri- products, enveloping indigenous attractions in package tour products, and propagating and replicating the results. Through the action, producers not only acquire better skills but are also able to market their products more successfully.

The beneficiary groups of the project are rural producers, craftsmen, hoteliers, village home-stays, agro-producers, craft and agro-enterprises, women entrepreneurs, informal self-help groups, disadvantaged youth, etc. HAB and BAOWE also receive assistance in terms of skills development and capacity building. These agencies are active in helping the vulnerable and neglected players in the value chain.

This catalogue is one vital step towards promoting Bhutanese handicrafts. 150 products showcased here are results of meticulous efforts of Bhutanese artisans and HAB through SHINE. It not only addresses the important aspect of Bhutanese craft culture but also brings innovation, finesse and artistry to keep the sector in tune with changing market demands. These products are original, unique, consumer and eco-friendly, and affordable.

Introduction

Chhorten Dorji
Executive Director
Handicraft Association of Bhutan

Take Bangchung, one of Bhutan's most well-known hand-made products, for example. This circular food container, bamboo-made with intricate patterns of brilliant colors is no ordinary household item. It has a compelling story to tell.

The traditional dyes used and the art of weaving and using traditional dyes itself along with its utility as a cherished household item in our not-so-distant past tells who we are and how we lived. Bhutan's handicrafts are a source of pride, of character and of rich traditions. They represent the identity of the people who make them and their environs. At the larger level, they are part and parcel of Zorig Chusum, the 13 Arts and Crafts of Bhutan.

Yet, today, our handicrafts have fallen by the wayside. Machine-made imports of all kinds, polished and embellished - and much cheaper, handier and useful - have encroached on our markets and homes. Most of our traditional makes from cane, wood, textile, clay, etc. are confined to that ever dwindling category of "souvenir/gift items". Traditional Bhutanese handicrafts are gradually losing their value in the modern living. We often tend to view arts and crafts as an entity disassociated from practical life and wellbeing, fit only for aesthetics or ornament. The skills of our artisans, garnered and honed over generations are on the verge of disappearing, due to the little economic profit in preserving and pursuing them.

It has been an open secret that most crafts sold to tourists in Bhutan are imported, although they are tagged as "Bhutanese". Equally challenging is the lack of innovation and creativity in the sector. There is no benchmark for quality and control for authenticity. The craft sector also lacks strategic direction, policy formulation and implementation, market linkages, infrastructure and finance. Currently, the middlemen and retailers are the biggest beneficiaries; they pay artisans very little yet keep exorbitant profit for themselves. Craftspeople neither get recognition for their skills nor ownership or rights over their works. They remain nameless.

The Sustainable Hospitality Industries Inclusive of Native Entrepreneur (SHINE) project comes into the picture against this backdrop. Funded by the European Union, the project strives to restore the rightful place of handicrafts in Bhutanese society by capacitating the artisans, especially in rural Bhutan, to develop new products, to mobilize raw materials from the region instead of importing, and to strengthen their business links with tourism.

SHINE literally shed lights on the economically-challenged and disadvantaged craftspeople and their handiwork. It aims to strengthen market linkages, improve market and product accessibility, promote innovation and quality, and help with product marketing while creating portfolios for visibility of the craftspeople. Moreover, it incorporates principles of affordability, locally abundant materials, environmental conscientiousness, cultural acceptability, and makes the products and services "simply better".

This handicraft catalogue is one output of such an endeavor. Among manifold benefits, it brings into spotlight the essence of craft as a vital aspect of Bhutanese culture and the skills inherent in our craftspeople, which rightfully deserve due recognition. This catalogue is a window to engender creativity, innovation and vitality into our handicraft industry, without which no art or craft can survive.

Let's not forget that when we purchase an authentic handicraft item, we not only help put food on the table of artisans and their families but help conserve and promote an invaluable heritage and value that define us as people and nation.

CANE AND BAMBOO PRODUCTS

Traditionally, hand-made bamboo and cane products hold a pride of place in Bhutanese homes. They are everywhere - as storage containers, baskets for carrying, food utensils, musical instruments, bows and arrows, walls for houses, fences, ropes and floor mats, name any. The abundance of cane and bamboo in Bhutan's forests coupled with multi-dimensional uses has made Tsarzo - cane and bamboo craft - the most widespread skill in the traditional cottage industry.

Today, the advent of modern plastic and metallic products may have somewhat pushed cane and bamboo products to the fringe but the craft continues to carve a niche for itself as gift and decorative pieces adorning homes and offices with its effusive colours and patterns.

More significantly, the craft remains a vital source of income for the craftspeople in communities across Bhutan.

SADDLE BAG

Tsezib (saddle bag) is widely used in Bhutanese homes as storage containers for food and household items. It was also used to transport goods on yak- and horse-back in the olden times. Today, the bag is extensively by tourists during wilderness trekking and expedition.
